

holidayevent

HUGE SAVINGS! TOP JINGLE FOR YOUR TRADE IN!
SHOP NOW

RATES AS LOW AS 0%

EDUCATION

Atlanta schools move towards replacing APD cops in schools

Dad says his 11-year-old son got cocaine-related homework assignment

U.S. DOE: Nation's high school graduation rate hits record of 82...

U.S. I record

holidayevent

HUGE SAVINGS! TOP JINGLE FOR YOUR TRADE IN!

RATES AS LOW AS 0%
EXPAND AD

Eric Sturgus
 The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

U.S. Chamber and NAACP partner to improve black student performance

 COMMENT

© 11:41 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 10, 2015 | Filed in: Education

my

Flashback: 1965 aerial photos of Atlanta

Free access to myAJC for AJC subscribers.

EXPLORE →

SIGN UP FOR E-NEWSLETTERS

Want more news? Sign up for free newsletters to get more of the AJC delivered to your inbox.

Georgia NAACP officials and local chamber of commerce leaders are working with their national counterparts on a campaign to help African-American students improve academically.

A U.S. Chamber of Commerce report released Thursday shows African-American students, including those in Georgia, lag behind the rest of the nation on national assessments, performance in programs for academically gifted students and graduation rates. The report mirrors other research on African-American student performance, but it has prompted the two organizations — which are often on opposite sides of some issues — to work together on raising awareness about the issue and to propose solutions.

The U.S. Chamber report noted, for example, only 19 percent of African-American fourth-graders in Georgia were proficient in the 2015 National Assessment of Educational Progress math assessment, compared to the national average of 40 percent. Georgia, the study found, has the fourth-highest percentage of African-American students in the nation at 37 percent.

“There’s a lot of opportunity to do so much better,” Cheryl Oldham, U.S. Chamber of Commerce Foundation Vice President of Education and Workforce, said of student performance.

The 40-page report was done after discussions between leaders of the two organizations. While the report notes improvements in African-American

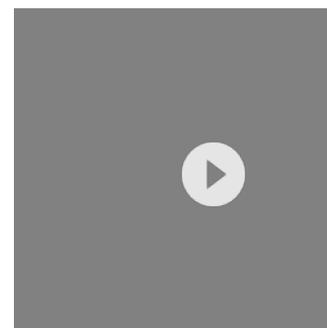

May 14, 2014 - Decatur - Za'Riyah Jones (left) and Laryssa Brogdon load a bridge they made with spaghetti and marshmallows with pennies to test its load bearing ability. Fourth grade students participate in lessons on the Stock Market and Bridges in Rudolph Liggins' gifted classroom at

holidayevent

 Huge Savings!
TOP JINGLE FOR YOUR TRADE IN!

RATES AS LOW AS 0%

SHOP NOW

DETAILS:

students in recent decades, Oldham said the achievement gap is still too great.

The report suggests "staying the course" on accountability measures, such as annual testing in math and reading starting in the third grade. It also supports school choice initiatives and more programs where struggling students get help from higher-performing students. Oldham said she believes education legislation signed into law Thursday by President Barack Obama will improve make schools more accountable to ensure African-American students succeed.

Chapel Hill Elementary School in DeKalb County. In 2006, Georgia education officials touted the growing numbers of minority and disadvantaged students flowing into gifted classes. But an analysis by The Atlanta Journal-Constitution shows black students still lag significantly behind their white counterparts in gifted programs. BOB ANDRES / BANDRES@AJC.COM

VIEW COMMENTS 3

More videos:

MOST READ

1. Report: Nkemdiche became 'paranoid' and was trying to escape...
2. Los Angeles schools close due to threat: What we know now
3. Navy's new \$360 million ship towed back to shore after days

SUGGESTED AJC STORIES

Tenn. woman arrested after pulling gun on black man who asked...

Death of Mich. woman mauled by dogs ruled suicide, fiancé in...

Jeff Schultz: Braves blew it with Heyward

PROMOTED STORIES

15 Things to Get Rid of Right Now
HGTV

Ikea And Better Shelter Are Sending Flat-Pack Housing To Refugees In...
Co.Exist

You're In For a Big Surprise If You Own A Home
Bills.com

Recommended by

HUGE SAVINGS!
TOP JINGLE FOR YOUR TRADE IN!
RATES AS LOW AS 0%

SHOP NOW

MORE FROM AJC.COM

TOPICS

LIFESTYLE →

Nature lovers, it's "Wild Africa" at the Fernbank!

NATION →

Los Angeles schools closed due to threat: What we know now

FOR TODAY AND EVERY DAY

SHOP NOW

BUSINESS →

Report disputes offshore drilling impact on Georgia

EDUCATION →

Atlanta schools move towards replacing APD cops in schools

LOCAL NEWS →

Mother now charged — but on the lam — in Cherokee newborn's death

